Your Turn

Every time a major issue confronts Haliburton County, the elected officials and special interest groups have plenty to say.

But, for the most part, the opinions and feelings of the majority of local residents go unrecognized.

In an attempt to rectify this, The Times is presenting a news survey on page 6 of this edition. The poll is designed to find out how readers feel about some of the important developments taking place in our county.

The 20 questions cover topics like water levels, health care, the environment and the performance of our politicians.

It will only take a couple of minutes and every voice counts.

Especially yours.

With the summer coasting to an end all too soon, Casey Woodcock, Darrell Allan and Tyler Woodcock took advantage of their last few days of freedom to get out on the streets and have some fun. The trio recovered an abandoned go-cart from a nearby woods and, with a little work, had it back on the roads in Minden. The fact that their vehicle has no engine doesn't mean all the fun is gone out of it, especially when there are so many hills just crying out kids and go-carts.

Property owners request study

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Lake Kashagawigamog Association is requesting that the Ministry of the Environment carry out a detailed environmental assessment study of the Dysart sewage treatment plant expansion.

The motion was overwhelmingly supported by the more than 100 members who attended the association's first annual meeting at the Wig-A-Mog Inn on Saturday.

The audience listened to presentations from members who are concerned that the sewer plan expansion will have a negative impact on the water quality of the lake, then voted to support the request to the Ministry.

Association President John Puffer said the expansion of the sewer plant is "the most difficult issue to deal with." He said the organizing committee had spent a great deal of time

County encourages flexibility

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The County of Haliburton has submitted its response to the province's proposal to restructure the county government system.

The county's comments, which were due Friday, stressed the importance of ensuring that any moves to reform local government are flexible enough to accommodate the diverse nature of Ontario's 26 counties.

"There was a strong feeling among council that perhaps this report is geared more to urban and suburban areas," says Carol Puffer, Reeve of Lutterworth and the chairman of the ad hoc committee which drafted the response.

She says the council wants to avoid being saddled with provincial policies that are not suited to Haliburton's rural setting.

The county's comments support the principles of reform expressed in the province's recommendations and agrees that restructuring studies be undertaken by each individual county.

Haliburton County is already in the process of pursuing many of the recommendations outlined in the province's report including a waste management master plan, an economic development plan and a county-wide reassessment of property values. Haliburton's committee found that the county is "already functioning well within the majority of the applicable recommendations."

A minimum population base of 4,000 would be unmanageable here, county feels.

The one provincial recommendation that has caused the most concern among local politicians suggests that municipalities have a minimum population of 4,000 in order to ensure viability and effective delivery of services.

Although Haliburton's committee agreed that municipalities must be viable and self-reliant, they said they "believe that the consolidation of local municipalities to a minimum population base of 4,000 is not appropriate to this locale."

"Insisting on a minimum population base of 4,000 in the area would make the physical size of each 'restructured' area unmanageable and hinder our ability to provide efficient and responsive services," said Haliburton's response.

It was suggested by the county that seasonal residents be included in the definition of population.

Even with the inclusion of seasonal residents, four Haliburton townships won't meet the 4,000 population guideline. They are Bicroft, Cardiff, Snowden and Monmouth.

Puffer says the 4,000 figure may still be unrealistic for those small municipalities. "It comes back to flexibility, she says. "If these smaller municipalities are being self-sufficient, why disturb them?"

Snowdon's Reeve, George Simmons, has said he will fight any attempt to amalgamate his township with larger neighbours.

The provincial report recommended that each county be required to adopt a county official plan by 1994. The official plan would

Police comb countryside for cult leader

Police are continuing the hunt for a Burnt River commune leader wanted in connection with an assault on one of his followers.

Roch Theriault, 42, is wanted by police after allegedly amputating the arm of Gabrielle Lavelle, 39, without her consent. Lavelle was treated in hospital after making her way to a shelter for battered women.

Theriault, who calls himself Moses, was the leader of the Ant Hill Kids, a commune living on a farm in Burnt River near Highway 121, east of Cobocok.

When police arrived at the farm to arrest Theriault, they found the commune deserted and initiated an extensive manhunt in the area involving helicopters and dogs.

According to OPP Sergeant Sue Laverty, it's suspected that Theriault, and three other cult members who are also wanted, evaded searchers and returned to the commune to pick up a white van.

Since the police first released the description of the vehicle last week, Laverty says there have been numerous reported sightings of the van but so far the investigation has turned up no sign of the missing cult members.

Police are now assuming that Theriault and his fleeing followers have left the

For a brief moment Wednesday morning, Highway 121 just east of Minden became the Great White Way. The splash came as Colour Your World store owner Bill Davis was returning home with a load of paint. The band holding a pallet of 32 gallons of white latex paint broke as his vehicle rounded a corner, sending the cans and their contents tumbling across the pavement and into the ditch. The Minden Fire Department was called to the scene to hose down the spill before the paint had a chance to make it's mark permanently.

Ice goes in early this year for power skating school

The summer has just barely slipped away and already, members of the Minden Minor Hockey Association are gearing up for the coming season.

Hockey this year will also start earlier as the ice at the Minden arena will be installed at the beginning of next month.

To prepare for the coming season the local association will be holding a registration night, Friday, September 15. The registration will take place at Minden Arena from 7 to 9 p.m. Players, coaches and volunteers are urged to come out and sign up for the coming season.

In conjunction with the registration, the association will be holding a skate and equipment exchange at the same time.

Other skating news includes the announcement of a Canpowerskate school planned for two weeks in October, starting October 2.

Powerskating is a method of instruction which assists young skaters in balance, proper technique and striding. The skills taught are of value to hockey players as well as figure skaters with concentration on basic skills that allows the young skater to advance more quickly in other areas of his or her sport.

The instructor for this course is David Hollows. The cost is $65, which includes ten hours of ice time.

Registration for the Canpowerskate school will be Thursday, September 7 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Minden Municipal office, upstairs.

Winner of the Minden Minor Hockey draw for the Skydome Weekend was Mark Walker of Minden. Special thanks to Larry's Video and Hobbies 'n' Stuff for sponsoring this weekend.

Speed limits posted

Signs will soon be going up on four Lutterworth Township Roads to indicate a maximum speed limit of 60 km per hour.

Council passed a bylaw last Tuesday approving the new speed limits on Lutterworth Boundary Road, Rackety Trail, Hunter Creek Road and Little Bob Road.

The new limits were requested by residents at a previous meeting.

The township's road superintendant will be ordering the signs and they will be put in place as soon as they arrive.

editorial

Now is the time for all Canadians to come to the aid of their government, we're being told. They need more money to pay for lavish advertising campaigns that tell us they need more money to reduce the deficit.

A two-page advertisement extolling the virtues of the federal government's latest tax grab appeared last weekend in major newspapers throughout the country. This week, the same ad is running in all community newspapers. You'll find this expensive bit of propaganda in the centre of today's paper.

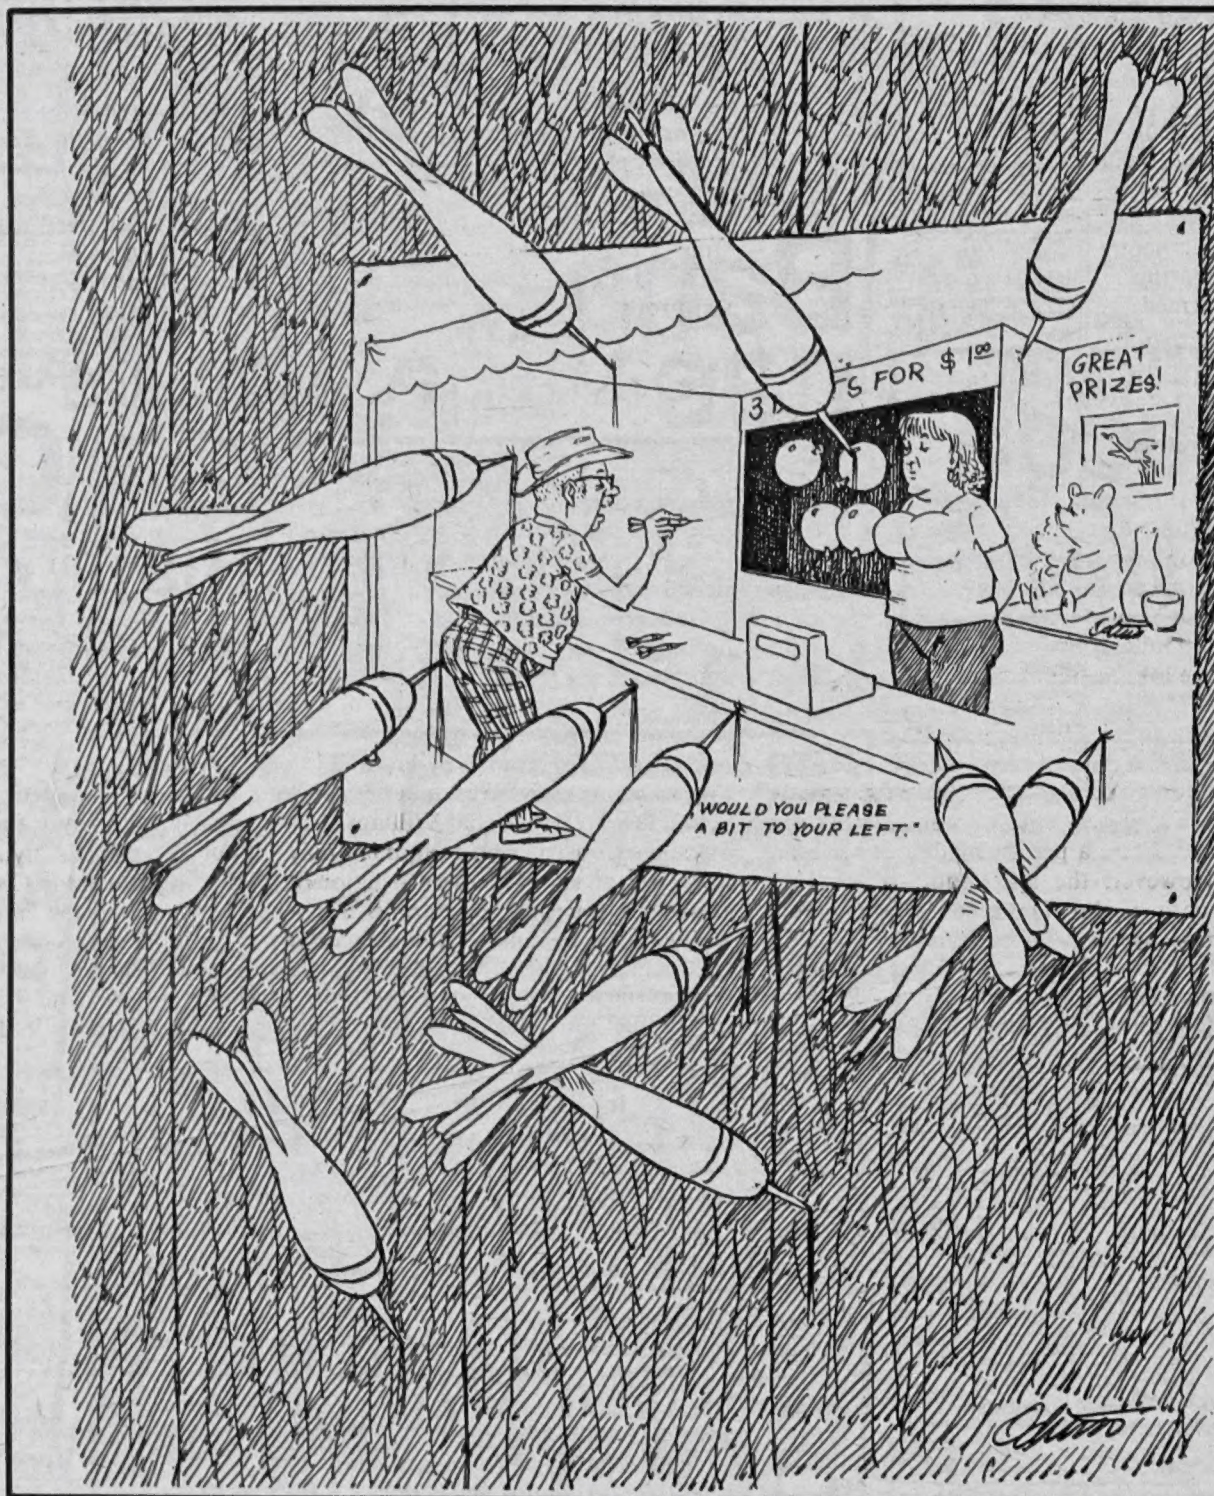

These ads demonstrate the government's commitment to innovative representation. When their policies rub us the wrong way, they launch an advertising campaign to win our support. They used this tactic when tampering with the postal system, they used it to extremes when free trade proved unpopular and now they are using it to twist the country into believing a nine per cent sales tax is a blessing in disguise.

Once upon a time, elected 'representatives' carried our wishes to parliament and tried to encourage their counterparts to create policies to meet those wishes. Policies were initiated at the grass-roots level to address our needs.

Governments have twisted this process to the point where it now works in reverse. Policies are initiated by government. When they prove to be unpopular, a campaign is launched to convince us that this is what we really want. If we're still not convinced, well, that's just too bad.

Such will be the case with the Tories' new sales tax. The government's sales pitch is bound to win over some support. But it's incredible that most Canadians will applaud when the government digs into our pockets in the name of deficit reduction—especially after frittering away millions of dollars on another a worthless advertising campaign.

If the government wants to convince us of the need to cut the deficit, it should set an example by first cutting out needless expenses. A good place to start is by cutting the excesses out of their advertising expenses. There is a place for informative advertising, but we can't afford to pay for government propaganda such as this latest example.

The urge to strut our stuff just never ends

In difficult times, fashion is always outrageous.
Elsa Schiaparelli

Elsa was a European fashion designer with a sharp eye and a sharper tongue who died in 1972. That means she probably never got to eyeball anything like the apparition I saw slouching along a downtown street this morning—a teenage kid in a purple Mohawk with what looked like a Victoria Cross hanging from his earlobe. He was also wearing stovepipe jeans with the knees out, paratroopers boots, and a black leather jacket sporting more chrome than '58 Cadillac.

Shriner?

Hallucination?

Venusian?

Nah—just a 1980's version of an ageless male obsession: the urge to get out there and Strut Our black 'n white

by Arthur Black

Stuff.

You don't even have to be a card-carrying member of the genus Homo Sapiens to feel the itch. Peacocks do it with their fancy tail assembly. Tomcats caterwaul, ruffed grouse drum, lions roar, bull moose bellow and baboons—never mind. The point is, males of all species simply love to show off—even if it means looking like idiots.

Most species have the innate good taste to stick to one shtick. The peacock does not attempt to sing arias. The Holstein bull does not try to become a snappy ballroom dancer. But not human males. Tattoos, bones through the nose, covering ourselves with blue dye or eagle feathers—we'll do anything.

We been doing it for years. 'Way back in the 1600's during the reign of Elizabeth I, men of fashion dressed like...well, queens, actually. They wore earrings necklaces and great, gobbety rings. They stuffed themselves into corsets, wore conspicuous flashy garters on their thighs and padded their hips with straw.

A century later, Paris spawned a bloom of male dandies that could have given our Skinheads a lesson in outrageousness. They were called the Incroyables—and they were fairly incredible alright. They wore coats so long that the tails trailed on the ground.

Teamwork spawned successful skating school

Editor:

One Saturday, in the fall of 1988, Minden and Haliburton met in the Dysart arena. There were no arguments, no fights, no liquor, no age barriers, and, no one lost! Working together toward a common goal were, the Haliburton Minor Hockey Association, the Minden Minor Hockey Association, the Haliburton Figure Skating Club and the Minden Figure Skating Club. This happy and rewarding day of "Power Skating" was organized by the newly formed "Highland Skating School."

The two vice-chairpersons of this school are: the president of the Haliburton Figure Skating Club and the president of the Minden Figure Skating Club. The chairperson for the school, is currently the Canadian Figure Skating Association representative for the association's Area #1, and a former president of the Minden Club. All decisions for the Highland Skating School are shared jointly by the Board of Directors of both the Haliburton and Minden Figure Skating Clubs.

The Highland Skating School is a non-profit organization, run by volunteers. All members of the community are welcome, boys, girls, young, old, beginners, figure skaters and hockey players. The school offered a 10-hour, certified, powerskating course for, hockey teams, coaches and other interested persons. The first two power-skate sessions were completely full and there have been many requests for more of the same this year.

Other programs include a Canskate program for beginners and the very young, and a Test program for more accomplished skaters. This is an off-season school, run only in the spring, fall and, or, summer when other hockey and skating clubs do not operate.

The school operates from the Dysart arena as it is the only arena in this county that has the expensive equipment necessary for icemaking during the off season. The school has skaters registered from Haliburton, Minden, Wilberforce, West Guilford, and Bancroft and guest skaters from Uxbridge, Lindsay and Orillia. As well as a very professional coaching staff, the school organizes a Canadian Figure Skating Association

Shocked by the Minden's misuse of stop-work order

Editor:

I was shocked at the Misuse of a Stop-Work Order (in response to the Haliburton Echo on Wed., Aug. 23).

All people who know their job realize you cannot put a stop-work order on a job unless there is a building permit on the job, or for the job.

If there is a permit you first have to put on an order to comply before you can put on a Stop-Work Order. Yes, I did regular inspections on Bill Simmerman's new Restaurant and Gas Station and I had a permit made out for him. However, the last couple of weeks I worked, a lot of my records disappeared. I wonder why? how? and who? I would like to say Bill Simmerman is one of the most honest guys you would ever want to meet and I am embarrassed at the way he has been treated in this matter. If properly investigated there would be no need to have a press release on a guy who is as honest as the day is long, unless you are trying to cast a shadow on the undersigned and create a big name for yourself.

If someone does not obtain a building permit you can charge him for failure to comply with the act, or issue him an order to comply with the act under common courtesy. Also there was no contravention of zoning by-law and if a proper investigation had taken place it would have revealed that William Simmerman's Construction equipment may have been on site for the construction of a gas station and restaurant. I am appalled at the insinuation that either Bill Simmerman or myself would knowingly contravene a zoning by-law and that it was, in fact, properly zoned for the use he intended to use it for. I feel the township owes Bill Simmerman and myself an apology.

Respectfully submitted,

Bradley Bradamore,
Ex-Chief Building Official.

Blatant statement must be challenged: reader

Editor:

In a recent article concerning water levels in the Haliburton lakes you quoted an Environment Canada spokesman, Paul Turcotte, as saying "the reservoir lakes in Haliburton County were established to supply the Trent-Severn Waterway and they are adequate."

Could you find out the basis for such a statement or if you prefer give me Mr. Turcotte's address and I will request it from him.

Such a blatant statement should not go unchallenged.

C. G. Robinson,
Blairhampton.

Note: Paul Turcotte may be reached through the Environment Canada media office at (819) 997-6822.

Eavesdropping on a conversation from above

St. Peter: (to himself) Oh my, oh my! I had better tell the Chief about this one. This is too much for one saint to handle!... God, are you there? Oh, of course you are. O Great and Supreme Ruler of the Universe and all that is in it, I need to speak with you.

God: Go ahead. I'm listening.

Peter: Well, God, it's sort of hard to say, but there's a movement afoot in Ontario... a province in Canada as you know (of course you know). Yes, Well, it's that their government is telling the schools to no longer use the Lord's Prayer and the Bible for their opening exercises.

God: Is that so?

Peter: Yes, God. But there's more. They also have to use prayers and readings from other religions.

God: Really? That's very interesting.

Peter: Interesting?? It's downright dangerous. All the time I've been trying to keep this province on the straight and narrow, and now they reject the prayer your own son taught, and the writings you inspired.

God: Now wait a minute, Peter. What you're telling me is that they want to include other traditions of belief in, what was it you called them, opening exercises, right?

Peter: Yes, but...

God: I don't hear anything about rejection of Jesus or the Bible.

directions

by Edward Moll

Peter: Yes, but...

God: I just don't want you to jump to rash and hasty conclusions. You've been known to do that, you know. Anyway, sorry I interrupted you. Go ahead.

Peter: Well maybe they don't want to reject Jesus or the Bible, but I think they have a point when they say they want to preserve the Jewish-Christian heritage on which the province was founded...

God: You mean Christian heritage.

Peter: What do you mean?

God: Whenever people say "Jewish-Christian values" they exclusively mean Christian, and that usually means the values of their culture, rather than what Jesus was trying to say. If they really wanted to restore their founding religious traditions, maybe they should look at the spirituality of the people who were there first.

Peter: The native peoples. You mean to say you listened to them?

God: Of course. Even when nobody else was.

There are always going to be people who are intentionally deaf like that fool of a church leader who said I don't hear the prayer of a Jew.

Peter: But even if heritage wasn't an issue, what about the children? How are they ever going to learn about you? Won't all these different traditions confuse them?

God: I trust children. And besides, the more they learn about what other people live and believe, the more accepting they'll become of differences among themselves.

Peter: But isn't it the school's responsibility to teach these children...

God: (interrupting) It is the parent's responsibility to pass on those values and examples. That's what I created families for. Foisting it off on an already overburdened institution is irresponsible and lazy.

Peter: I gather then that you're not entirely opposed to what's happening, taking the Lord's prayer out and such.

God: It's about time. The noise of all that droning was getting to me. I've said it before, and I'll say it again: "These people come near to me with their mouth, and honour me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me."

Peter: Well, what do you think is going to happen?

God: We'll see. After all, I am what you called me, am I not? Great and Supreme Ruler of the Universe and all that is in it. Trust me.

Police investigate Harcourt murder

A murder investigation is underway by the Minden OPP after a man's body was discovered partially buried in a wooded area near Harcourt last Wednesday.

OPP Sergeant Steve Adam said they are working on the assumption that the man was murdered. The body was found by a Harcourt area resident, who is not being identified.

Sergeant Adam said Friday morning that they have a good idea of the identity of the victim although he would not reveal the name until after a post-mortem was completed.

The investigation is being co-ordinated by Detective Inspector Dave Crane from the OPP's Criminal Investigation Branch in Toronto. OPP Constable Ken Wesley is the investigating officer in Minden.

The post-mortem was to have been carried out Friday.

Final Hurdles cleared

All the obstacles have been cleared for a group purchase of the shoreline road allowance on Black Lake.

At last Tuesday's Lutterworth Township Council meeting, Brad Gleason provided a satisfactory explanation on why he needs to have the new property lines slanting out rather than running perpendicular from the established lot lines.

Gleason told council that he has a cottage on the shoreline allowance and the lot line would go right through it unless it is allowed to slant out.

Guidelines for the sale of shoreline road allowances indicate that new property lines should extend straight out from the existing property lines. However, if consent from the neighbouring landowner is granted, the lines can be shifted. Gleason owns both of the properties in question.

At a previous meeting, council heard a complaint from Marian Lee that another of Gleason's property lines was being slanted out in front of her property. That deviation from the guidelines will not be allowed.

Few townships have official plans cover settlement patterns, water and sewer services, waste management, transportation, environmental concerns, economic development and policies covered under the Planning Act.

If local municipalities chose to adopt an official plan, it will cover areas like local land use, zoning, local roads and parking. Municipal official plans would be required to conform with the county official plan.

Of the 10 municipalities in Haliburton County, only Dysart et al, Cardiff and Anson, Hindon and Minden have official plans. Puffer says the fact that all three are due to be updated means the timing is perfect to start drafting a county official plan.

She says it's not the intention to have Dysart, Minden and Cardiff radically alter their respective official plans to conform to the county's, but rather to use the existing plans as a base of knowledge and experience.

"We'll work from their experience," says Puffer. "It will move the county official plan further along and faster." She admits this will require cooperation from the involved townships, but says there seems to be a cooperative spirit among the councillors.

When it comes to drafting the environmental concerns in the county official plan, Puffer says she hopes lake capacity studies are included in that process.

Surprisingly, the county's ad hoc committee did not respond to one of the province's recommendations which has caused a great deal of concern among some municipalities in the province.

The provincial committee recommended that Ontario's conditional and unconditional grant programs, through which transfer payments are made to municipalities, be "realigned" to remove deterrents to the amalgamation of smaller municipalities and create incentives to promote the creation of larger units of local governments.

To many municipal politicians, this recommendation is a back-handed way of forcing small municipalities to amalgamate by holding back grants and transfer payments.

In a letter to the Minister of Municipal Affairs in early July, Snowdon council called the recommendation dealing with grants, "an insidious form of coercion designed to compel small municipalities into line with the guidelines recommended in the county government report."

But Puffer says the county's ad hoc committee expressed no concerns about the recommendation.

Since the province's restructuring proposal was first released, local councillors have made it clear that any changes and reforms have to come from within Haliburton County and not imposed by the province.

The ad hoc committee reiterated these concerns by stressing the need for flexibility. The committee also objected to the recommendation that the Ministry of Municipal Affairs should "coordinate" county studies. They feel the Ministry's role should be to "assist" county efforts.

"We believe very strongly that the county play the lead role in any future plans and that we control our own destiny," says the report.

Now that the county has supported the idea of county reform in principle, Puffer says she hopes to see council act quickly to request a study of the restructuring of Haliburton.

Before any discussion of amalgamation can begin, Puffer says the county needs to have the study done to, "take inventory" of the assets owned by the various municipalities. She says more than half of the province's counties have signed up to have their studies started and for Haliburton County, "it's just a matter of getting the resolution on the table."

Puffer is optimistic the experience will be a positive one. "One way or another we find out how to operate as efficiently as possible."

Golfer records ace

The first hole-in-one of the season at the Blairhampton Golf Club was recorded last Saturday by Frank Codlin of Minden.

Using a seven-wood from the tee, Codlin made the 164-yard drive to the pin on the second hole.

The feat was witnessed by Codlin's wife, Merl, and Bill Scott. Par for the second hole at Blairhampton is three.

From hustle of Tokyo to the Highlands' calm

Adjusting to new surroundings a pleasure

Making the transition from the crowds and hustle of Tokyo to the wide open spaces of Haliburton County is an adjustment that Yonei Noriko is quickly learning to enjoy.

Noriko has always dreamed of coming to Canada, and now that her dream is being fulfilled, she is overwhelmed by the vast amount of open space this part of the country has to offer. The 16-year-old exchange student beams with excitement as she looks forward to spending the next 12 months in the relative peacefulness of the Highlands.

The amount of open land between houses in the Highlands is one of the first things to impress the young brown-haired girl, who is staying with Ann and Don Barker in Carnarvon. It's so unlike her home town of Tokyo, which she says is very crowded.

"People, people, everywhere are people," Noriko says of Tokyo in her broken English. "In Tokyo there are a lot of people but we don't know each other. In some places, even the next door neighbours don't know each other. I really wanted to come to a place like here, where there aren't so many people."

Noriko is participating in an exchange program through the Educational Foundation for Foreign Students, which involves more than a dozen countries in promoting cultural understanding. This is the first year that Haliburton County has been involved in the program and already there are three area families hosting foreign students. Frank Wallace, who teaches at the high school, is the area co-ordinator.

"It's great that Wallace is involved," says Ann Barker. "He's in the school, so if there's a problem Noriko can get in touch with him."

The tension and apprehension of travelling to a new country was further magnified as Noriko's plane touched down an hour late, amid a thunder and lightning storm at the Toronto International Airport. Because of the storm, the airport was closed and Noriko had to wait with the other passengers on the plane until the storm passed. Another worry was that she had no idea of what the Barkers looked like, since she did not receive the pictures that had been mailed to her.

Fortunately, her fear of not being able to locate the Barkers at the airport were soon dismissed. When she looked out the window of the plane and saw someone waving a Japanese flag in the distance, she knew everything would be alright.

"I knew there would be a few tears on the other side of the glass," Barker said. "That's why I was there jumping up and waving the Japanese flag."

While Noriko admits she will have to work on improving her oral English language skills, her comprehension of the language is surprisingly good. She says students in Japanese schools learn to read and write English, but they have little opportunity to speak the language. For two weeks before her arrival in Toronto, Noriko also attended a special camp in Seattle, designed to help the students converse with their host families.

One of the reasons Noriko chose a rural setting rather than a large city for her visit was to avoid the temptation of surrounding herself with Japanese-speaking people. "In a big city there are a lot of Japanese people and I might just speak Japanese. Here it forces me to improve my English."

KRCA manager to address county council

by Jay Kerr—Wilson

Haliburton County Council has invited the manager of the Kawartha Region Conservation Authority to attend September's meeting and give a presentation.

Conservation authority General Manager Ian Macnab received the invitation from Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis to speak to council on September 20. Macnab has also been invited to a September 29 meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Water Level Management Committee.

Macnab is meeting with the two groups to discuss the current proposal to extend the present boundaries of the authority along the Gull and Burnt River watersheds. The expansion may include portions of Haliburton County.

Accompanying Macnab will be Tim Goodison, the Water Management Coordinator for the Authority and Bryce Young, Reeve of Somerville and one of the applicants for the expansion.

As part of his presentation, Macnab will address the history of conservation authorities in Ontario, the operating framework of the Kawartha Region Conservation Authority, the types of conservation programs that are undertaken and the funding involved with conservation authorities.

In a letter to Davis accepting the invitation Macnab says, "we would be most pleased to then have an in-depth discussion on possible benefits to be had within Haliburton from a conservation authority and the procedure to be followed by municipalities wishing to form a conservation authority."

In a telephone interview on Thursday, Macnab said Davis indicated to him that there was "a number of people who are interested in learning more about conservation authorities."

The conservation authority's staff is in the process of researching possible new boundaries for the authority and developing arguments to support the application, which must be approved by the province.

Macnab says it's not his intention to present Haliburton's councillors with boundary alternatives during the first meeting but rather to "give a good sound overview of the proposal."

"I won't be there to sell them a particular set of boundaries," says Macnab. "I won't be there to sell them anything."

Once county council clearly understands the expansion proposal, Macnab says the next stage is to see how many municipalities are interested in joining the authority. "If we have five or six interested municipalities, we will then work with the boundaries to see how we can best accommodate those municipalities," says Macnab.

In the end the extent of the expansion will depend on the political will of the people involved, he says.

Once the boundaries have been determined and the application has been approved by the province, it will require the approval of two-thirds of the municipalities involved in the expansion.

Noriko looks forward to driving lessons home land. She is also anxious to get a drivers' licence here. "One of the first questions she asked was if she could learn to drive," said Barker. "You can't get a licence in Japan until you're 18 and it is very expensive."

Some of the strict expectation of Japanese society, though, will be of advantage to Noriko. For example, the insistence on dedication to school work in Japan has instilled in her some impressive work habits. Barker feels Noriko's willingness to study will help her overcome her language difficulties when she goes into Grade 12 at the high school this week.

"Language and comprehension may be a factor" in Noriko's capabilities at school this year, said Barker. "But the way she studies, I don't think it's going to be a problem."

If Noriko can graduate from Grade 12 at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, she can go straight into university when she returns to Tokyo.

Outside of her school activities, Barker has a long list of things to do during Noriko's visit. "We're hoping to get to Newfoundland before the winter," Barker said. They will also be going to Toronto before Christmas to do some shopping at the Eaton Centre and to see the sights in the city. A trip to Niagara Falls is a strong possibility and a drive up through Algonquin Park to see moose and other wildlife is a must.

In the mean time, though, Noriko has little idle time on her hands. One of her first stops at a recent visit to Minden was at the post office to get enough stamps and envelopes to write about 60 letters to her friends back in Japan. She had been in the Highlands barely a week before she had mailed off more than 20 letters.

"I have so many friends and so much to tell them," Noriko said. Things are so different and so pleasant here that she has no trouble filling a page with her observations and experiences.

She says everyone she has met here has been friendly and helpful and she is amazed at the beauty of the countryside. Barker says Noriko was astonished by all the trees and the many lakes which are large by her standards. "Before she goes home, she'll know the value of trees," said Barker. "I'm looking forward to the changing colours," Noriko added.

She may be surprised, though, by the chill that comes with the changing leaves. "She already feels the cold," Barker said. The weather in Tokyo is milder than here, she said, similar what is experienced in Louisiana.

Tokyo does get a small share of snowfall each winter, but nothing like the mountains of white stuff that blanket the Highlands. "When the snow banks get high enough, we'll lose her," Barker laughed.

Noriko will have the opportunity to experience all the seasons before it's time to pack up and return in July to Tokyo. "I want to get to know a lot of people and make lots of friends here," she says so that when she does go home she can continue writing to her friends on the other side of the world.

The long hot summer of 1965

By Ben Kayfetz

Allan Gardens is a quiet municipal park several acres square located in downtown Toronto. To the east is Cabbagetown, once called North America's only Anglo-Saxon urban slum. To the west is Jarvis Street, once dignified avenue of the Family Court but in the 1960's a thoroughfare of seedy hotels, frequented by prostitutes and their customers. On the southwest corner is Jarvis Street Baptist Church, formerly the pulpit of fire-eating bigot Reverend T. T. Shields; and in another corner a series of greenhouses boasting many varieties of exotic plants.

Here in the mid-1960s, John Beattie attempted to raise his Nazi standard and win the heart of the Cabbagetown Lumpenproletariat with his inflammatory demagoguery.

William John Beattie first came to public attention in the early 1960s when he teamed up with the younger David Stanley in a series of escapades that were aimed at terrorizing and harassing Toronto's Jewish community, and in which to an extent they succeeded.

Of the two, Stanley, who was 18 in 1963, was the quiet propagandist. He was firmly committed to the printed word. He had been converted to Nazi doctrines by reading pamphlets, and in the end was led out of neo-Nazism by the act of reading a book, to wit, The True Believer by Eric Heffer.

Beattie, however, was dedicated to the "gimmickry" approach, making a "splash", gaining public attention. To this end he favoured demonstrations, pickets, rallies, celebrations of Hitler's birthday, anything that would arouse excitement, anger and publicity.

In mid 1965 Stanley convened a press conference and made a public confession of his error, a confession that has held to this day. From this point on Beattie, then 23, fashioned himself after the Fuehrer, even to the extent of combing his forelock in the style of Adolf and sprouting a toothbrush moustache a la Fuehrer.

The years 1963 and 1964 had been peppered by anti-semitic mass mailings, graffiti scrawlings, and blanketing of hate leaflets carried on jointly by the two. In January 1965, Mr. Guy Favreau, Canada's Justice Minister, named a Special Committee under Professor Maxwell Cohen of McGill to consider the question of a legal remedy to the problem of hate propaganda. Our account begins at this juncture.

From the late spring of 1965 to the summer of 1968 Toronto suffered a series of "long, hot summers." Beattie's first venture into Allan Gardens drew an estimated 5,000 people to this downtown park, mainly determined to stop him in his tracks. There was also, of course, a goodly proportion of curiosity seekers and those who simply wanted to be "where the action is." In all, the anti-Nazis and the curious outnumbered the followers of Beattie that the latter were simply not to be found. Either they had departed for safer locations, or had prudently removed any tell-tale insignia or markings from their clothing.

Several unfortunate young French-Canadians from Northern Ontario, who had come to Toronto looking for work, were wearing leather jackets, considered by some, quite erroneously, to be the equivalent of a fascist uniform. They "looked-like fascists" ergo they must be fascists. A wild chase took place. They were driven out of the park, pursued down a nearby lane and beaten up; an unforgivable case of mistaken identity through unthinking mob action.

Very early in the afternoon's developments, Beattie was removed from the park by the police and spirited away in their vehicle for his protection. Allan Gardens that afternoon was a seething mass, some armed with harmless tape recorders, other with less innocuous two-by-fours, all intent on finding Nazis—Nazis who failed to show up.

But Beattie wasn't through.

The next few seasons were taken up with negotiations with government, deputations to City Council, briefs to the Parks Commission and Board of Control by JCRC (the Joint Community Relations Committee of B'nai Brith and Canadian Jewish Congress), supported by citizens groups and the Legion, seeking some kind of regulatory practice on giving speaking permits in the parks, making the granting of such permits conditional on refraining from racial and religious abuse. Philip Givens, then mayor, spent long and strenuous hours of debate and persuasion.

Such a regulation was adopted by Toronto City

Beattie spent six months in prison

Council in July 1966 amid skeptical speculation that it was ultra vires, i.e. that the municipality would be invading the federally reserved area of criminal law. On December 7, 1966, Magistrate Charles Oppen agreed with the skeptics and dismissed charges against Beattie, saying the city was acting "outside its competence" in its amended bylaw, a view that was later upheld by the Supreme Court.

This only served to enforce the cry for a federally enacted anti-hate law, an amendment to the Criminal Code. A legislative planning committee of the JCRC was formed under John A. Geller Q.C., which went about the task of political lobbying and the persuasion of public opinion that was required. Earlier in 1966, the Cohen Committee had made a positive recommendation favouring such legislation—a great step forward—but Parliament had yet to pass it, and it was not high on Parliament's agenda.

The long, hot summers extended to 1966 and 1968. There was an interval in 1967 when Beattie spent six months in prison on a charge of conspiracy. Beattie had concocted a plan whereby he would be driven abroad by night and have on his possession placards individually decorated with swastika, each bearing the name of Jewish community figures. They included Rabbi A. L. Feinberg, Louis Herman, Philip Givens, Sydney M. Harris, Sydney Midanik, the present writer, and others. His plan was to hang a placard on the front door of their homes. The police had been forewarned by the JCRC, who had been kept fully informed by John Garrity, Beattie's "security chief."

The long, hot summers continued into 1966 and 1967, except for a brief respite while Beattie cooled his heels in prison.

Beattie was placed under arrest after making the first three stops.

The event occurred on September 5, 1966, and the Magistrate Tupper Bigelow delivered his seven-page judgement on May 5, 1967. His conclusion read "...I am wholly satisfied that there is not reasonable or any other doubt of the guilt of the accused. Indeed, their defences might properly be described as frivolous."

During many of his inroads in Allan Gardens, Beattie was closely surrounded by two tiers of foot police and a circle of police on horseback, who cut off any audible and visible contact with his public. On one occasion there were as many as 160 uniformed men in these gardens. Since he had no public address system, which may have been forbidden for reasons of peace and quiet in the park, his voice went unheard by people standing only a few feet away.

But the media people were allowed into the "inner ring" and had brought with them their microphones and tape recorders, placing the equipment close to his face. As a result, radio listeners as far away as Winnipeg and Vancouver heard him loud and clear, something the Allan Gardens throng was deprived of. A misleading impression was thus spread in these distant places, that Beattie was addressing, and being heard by a large assembly in a park. Nothing could be further from the truth.

In the 1965 fracas Ignac David was arrested and charged with assault. He had punched someone he took to be a neo-Nazi. Magistrate Hayes sentenced him to 30 days in prison. Sydney M. Harris, then an officer of the JCRC, appeared in the Court of Appeal as counsel for the 44-year old David. He presented psychiatric evidence indicating that survivors of the death camps (David has experienced Auschwitz and Buchenwald) may undergo a "mental blackout" when confronted with swastikas or other reminders of their death camp experience. On January 13, 1966, the Appeal Court reduced the prison sentence to a $75 fine.

In the end, Beattie gave up his charade as both the media and the public grew bored with his antics. Fewer and fewer showed until, in the end, nobody came. The media showed diminished interest and gave him little time or space. The remedy originally offered by the JCRC was finally effective. Even the militant groups, urged their members to stay away, and they did.

This is the first installment of a two part story of the long, hot summer of 1965, when racist sentiments first raised their ugly head at Toronto's Allan Gardens.

Next week, Ben Kayfetz describes the aftermath of these events and some of the opposition groups that have been formed as a result.

Coast Guard shoots holes in by-law

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Canadian Coast Guard has put a damper on Minden council's intention of drafting a by-law restricting the use of houseboats on the township's lakes.

The township sent a letter to the Coast Guard inquiring about possible restriction to the use of houseboats. The reply did not offer much encouragement.

The letter from the Coast Guard's Ship Safety Branch says houseboats are recognized as pleasure craft under the Canadian Shipping Act and are subject to the requirements of the Small Vessel Regulations.

These regulations address points such as vessel licensing, construction, and the carriage of lifesaving and firefighting equipment.

The letter says that based on local safety concerns, certain restrictions can be placed on specified bodies of water. These restrictions include prohibition of power-driven craft, prohibition of waterskiing and the establishment of speed limits.

But the restrictions would apply to all types of boats using the restricted body of water, so council can't single out and prohibit just houseboats.

Council first discussed the idea of a by-law to restrict houseboats while dealing with the new docking facilities at Allsaw Bridge Marine.

Local residents were concerned that the new docks would become a haven for houseboats and, although marine owner Wes Lytle told council that he would not permit "live-aboards" at his marina, the councillors unanimously passed a resolution directing the clerk to research a by-law restricting houseboats on township lakes.

Minden's Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry, who proposed the by-law, says the Coast Guard's response seems to indicate that council "can't do what we want to do."

He says the concern was brought to his attention by the newly formed Lake Kashagawigamog property owners association, and he feels their concerns are legitimate. It's the noise and pollution generating from houseboats which residents feel pose the greatest threat.

According to the Coast Guard's letter, "environmental concerns regarding the disposal of black and grey waters from pleasure craft are not covered under existing federal regulations."

"However, regulations have been drafted and should be introduced in the near future to prohibit the discharge of sewage from pleasure craft in any waters which provincial authorities may choose to designate."

Berry says that despite the Coast Guard's reply, the idea of a related by-law hasn't been abandoned yet.

Early last summer, Lutterworth council passed a by-law prohibiting the docking or launching of houseboats from township owned shore allowances. Reeve Carol Puffer says the township hasn't had the opportunity yet to enforce the by-law.

Lake residents want new study

and effort researching the question.

Puffer said members of the association's executive studied the class environmental assessment, prepared by Totten, Sims and Hubicki, and read every piece of information available on the project.

The first of the members to speak to the issue was Phillip Joseph, an employee of the Ministry of the Environment who owns property on the lake. Joseph said he was speaking as a property owner and not as a Ministry employee.

In his opinion, Joseph said he didn't believe the plant expansion was "sustainable development."

He was concerned that the plant expansion, and the construction of the resort sewer line along the shore, would result in significant development along Highway 121.

"I'm not against development but I'm against allowing it to the detriment of the lake," he said.

According to Joseph the sewage treatment plant expansion would allow 50 per cent more phosphorous into the lake than recommended by the Ministry of the Environment.

The next speaker was Kevin Walters, an engineer who owns property in Ingoldsby.

"I'm not against development but I'm against allowing it to the detriment of the lake," said cottager Phillip Joseph.

Walters has researched the effect of the Dysart sewage treatment plant on the water quality in Lake Kashagawigamog, and says he's found that the water quality has undergone significant deterioration since the plant first began operation.

He says the proposed expansion will result in further deterioration.

As an alternative, Walters suggests that the effluent from the sewage plant be pumped into the Burnt River downstream from Donald.

He said that the impact on the river would not be as great as it would be on the Lake Kashagawigamog chain. He said the Ministry of Environment seem to favour this alternative but the municipality has said it is too expensive to be feasible.

Pumping the effluent into the Burnt River would cost about 30 per cent more than pumping it into Grass Lake, the alternative favoured by the township.

Walters outlined this same proposal in a letter he sent to the Minister of the Environment, James Bradley, earlier in the summer. Snowdon Council has objected to effluent from Dysart's plant being diverted to the Burnt River, which runs through their township.

If the Ministry approves the association's request for an individual environmental assessment, it will mean the project could be delayed for as long as two more years.

When informed of the association's decision on Sunday, Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey said, "it's an option they had but they may well end up paying for it."

"That's the way the system works," said Fearrey. "(The association) is going to have to live with the water quality."

The delay which results from the individual assessment will probably mean the project is dead, said the reeve. Fearrey said the association's decision indicates that "they don't trust the consultants and they don't trust the Ministry." He said throughout the process of compiling the report there was no pressure put on Totten, Sims and Hubicki to deliver a favourable report.

He calls the Burnt River proposal a "red herring" which isn't feasible because of the costs involved unless, "the cottagers come along with two or three million dollars."

Residents angered by non-control of brush fire

Editor:

Your attention is drawn to an incident on August 25th, 1989, at approximately 9 p.m. when the Minden Fire Department was called to a large brush fire at Judges Plan 463, Conc. 4., Pt. Lot 21, behind Lots 4 and 5.

The fire was large enough to cause alarm to the cottagers in our Sugar Bush Cottagers Association, several of whom were resident at the time, to residents of Ingoldsby and to homeowners on the South Lake Kashagawigamog Road. There were four conflag-rations burning at the same time, at least 20 feet across at each fire, 50 feet high. These fires were witnessed by many of the above mentioned persons, names available if required.

In view of the recent forest fires and the excessively dry conditions of the bush, it is considered this was a potentially dangerous and hazardous situation, and definitely not a controlled burn.

The site of these fires is not easily accessible and is on a steep incline. There is no water, power or telephone service at the site, and the fires were well advanced before a cottager called in the alarm.

Apparently a burning permit was issued, the issuance of which was ill-advised to say the least, and obviously without proper consideration of the factors involved. It is our opinion that burning permits are being issued in an uncontrolled manner. Our enquiries determined that burning permits can be issued by several and separate offices, without cross-references, co-ordination, review of any parameters.

The person(s) concerned showed a lack of responsibility, and disregard for the safety of people and property. One of our members, whose cottage was close to the scene, has suffered from nervous tension and nightmares since the event. Some consideration by the perpetrator of this incident by informing residents in the proximity could have avoided such trauma.

We would appreciate council investigating this matter, taking appropriate action as required, and informing us of the results.

Ernest F. Thorn,
Pres., S.B.C.A.,
Captain, North York Fire Dept.

Skaters say they can't afford Haliburton's new fees test day at the end of each session. The test days are judged by certified persons from outside of our county and are open to skaters from other clubs such as, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Peterborough and Omeme.

Fall '88 and Spring '89 were very successful sessions for the school. Skaters made progress, the teaching was very good, many tests were taken and all bills were paid in full.

Registration for the Highland Skating School fall 1989 session were due August 16, 1989, along with half of the registration fee. Professional coaches and judges were organized.

Recreation committee chairman, Bill Davis, stated that it cost $1,200 per week to maintain the ice in the fall and said he felt the arena could not afford to open this September. The Highland Skating School agreed to pay $50 per hour for 24 hours a week for six weeks, this rate equals $1,200 per week.

This also leaves 26 hours of prime rental time per week, for others.

After the next recreation committee meeting, the Highland Skating School received a letter requesting $3,000 per week for fall ice rental. This equals $128 per hour. In the fall of 1988 the school paid $30 per hour for ice. In the spring of 1989 the school paid $40 per hour for ice. The school expected to pay $50 for ice in the fall of 1989 and were now being asked for $128 per hour.

Why? Mr. Davis explained that his board did not want to subsidize any skaters from other municipalities. In the past, our recreation committee not only subsidized skaters from other communities, but also a profit making organization called Hockey Haven. The fee the Highlands Skating School offered left no need to subsidize anyone.

The school chairperson, Toni Carr, attended a recreation committee meeting and the fee was reduced to $95 per hour.

The 34 figure skaters and 48 hockey players currently enrolled in the school are principally from Haliburton County. To meet the costs of the Dysart Community Centre arena, the Highland Skating School would have to immediately double its enrolment or double its fees. Enlarging the enrolment was a definite goal of the school but of course this takes time.

The chairperson of the Highland Skating School, Toni Carr, is committed, knowledgeable and very well organized. She has worked hundreds of hours for this school, freely and happily.

It is hard enough to find one person willing to volunteer one hour of his or her time and I fear that this community will have a long, long, long wait before they again see someone willing and able to do as much as Toni Carr.

There's some scary clothing hidden in the closets

Their shirt collars rose past their ears while their pantaloons (mustard coloured) came right up to their armpits.

The Incroyables also wore earrings, heavy rouge and artificial beauty spots on their cheeks, just to make certain they'd stand out in a crowd.

Things have been a little quieter on the male fashion front in this century. Quieter, but not entirely dormant. Some of us are old enough to remember the Zoot Suit of the '30s, with its hourglass waist, draped pants and shoulders that looked like somebody'd forgotten to take out the coat hanger. There are no Zoot Suits in my closet, but I'm pretty sure if I dug right to the back I'd unearth a couple of Carnaby Street psychedelic shirts, a Nehru jacket, some moth-eaten bell bottoms and a pair of winkle-picking Disco boots so ridiculous I don't have the nerve to even put them in a garage sale.

Skinheads aside, there's not much happening in the male flamboyance department these days. Trouble is, we don't have any role models. We need someone like Beau Brummel, the 19th century British fop who wore skin-tight pants, polished his boots with champagne, and decreed that "a perfect gentleman must change his gloves six times a day."

Who've we Canucks got to match that? Oh, Trudeau cut a fairly raffish figure with his roses, his cloaks and his George Raft fedoras, but he's faded from the stage.

Nowadays there's just Don Cherry and his incroyable shirt collars.

They tell me that this year the Batman Look is in for men—black denim jeans and a black blazer over a Batman T-shirt.

Pretty lame stuff. If Beau Brummel was around we'd all be wearing capes, bat ears and purple body stockings.

Heavy bats clinch tourney

There was stiff competition at the Ingoldsby ball diamond last weekend as five teams played off in a three-pitch tournament.

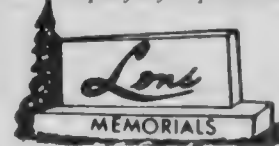

Fighting back from a slow start in the tournament, Kevin Smith's team from Minden went on to win the championship over Oshawa. Their bats really came to life in the final few games as opposing fielders wrenched their necks to watch the balls fly out of the park.

Jason Stamp's team edged out the Hyland Cons in the consolation championship to win a share of the cash prizes.

24 chosen to sit on new committee

by Bill Scott, MP

Late in March of this year, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney released the 24 distinguished Canadians chosen to sit at the newly created National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy.

Chosen for their skill in many areas, from private sector business to government, the members of the Round Table were asked to consider way Canada could better integrate economic development with environmental concerns -- in other words, to breathe life into the concept of sustainable economic development.

The Round Table met for the first time in June, and has recently reported progress in identifying its mandate.

First and foremost, the Round Table members agreed their point of departure ought to be the recommendations of the National Task Force on Environment and Development. Reporting in 1987, the Task Force said the roles of government industry and non-governmental organizations are equally important and essential to the goal of sustainable development.

Because Canadians can no longer afford to sit around and ponder problems, the Round Table decided it must focus on the pursuit and presentation of economic-environmental solutions rather than simply promote and define problems. This enterprise is massive, so the Round Table struck five working groups to address key issues of concern.

One group will study current government action in areas including fiscal policy, taxation, royalties, subsidies and regulation

Getting ready to leave the work-a-day world can be trying

Preparing for the transition from the work-a-day world in the city to retirement in the country is a trying experience at the best. Getting some advice from friends who have already walked that path can be helpful, though, as Ken Brown's letter to his city friend, Alan, demonstrates:

Dear Alan:

Yes, I do miss contact with people in the Toronto office, but believe me your interesting letters are as close as I want to get to the daily grind of the old job. Is it really true that a contribution list is circulating around the office to buy you a retirement gift even though you have not officially announced your retirement date? I warned you not to say a word about your retirement plans... especially to that sweet young lady in the secretarial pool. Probably, that miserable Ontario manager started the whole thing in order to force your hand.

Can't you just see it all now? The Company will invite the entire office to your farewell dinner in the back room of Luigi's Spaghetti House — Hard green peas, rubbery chicken and a side order of linguini for all. They may even spring for a few bottles of Orvieto, your favourite Italian white wine. Just remember, Alan, as guest of honour you had better stay away from the bar, or your farewell speech may start a small riot, or worse yet, get your pension cancelled.

Thirty years is a lot of service with one Company: a lot of squabbles with the Accountant over your expense sheet; a lot of late-night arrivals at the old Malton airport, and the never-ending struggle for a wage increase to keep your wife happy. The new owners in the Highlight of his vacation

Ten year-old Simon Siirala was fishing with his father and grandfather at Horseshoe Lake last Wednesday evening. Hardly had they got their anchor down and their lines in the water, when the fish started biting. There was no nibbling, it was an instant hit.

Huge bass were coming up. Simon and his grandfather did all the catching while Simon's father was busy netting.

The action last just 10 minutes. In that time they caught six bass. Over 20 pounds all together. Simon got the largest, a five pounder, 20-inch long monster.

The ten minutes passed, and rockbass and sunfish started bothering the fishermen, so they headed home for weighing, measuring and cleaning. Those ten minutes were the highlight of Simon's week-long holiday in this area.

Simon's grandfather is a weathered fisherman. First in Finland and almost thirty years on different lakes in Ontario. Never has he experienced this kind of phenomenon. And he praised himself for training his son to be a quick-thinking, fast-working netter, who saved the catch.

Will the real Bill Davis please stand up

Dysart Township Deputy Reeve Bill Davis is not the same Bill Davis who is challenging the Cardiff Reeve's right to hold office.

The Dysart Deputy Reeve says he received several phone calls from Cardiff area residents last week after The Times ran a story recounting Cardiff's Bill Davis allegations that Maurice Bradley is ineligible to be that township's reeve.

The confusion existed even though it was clearly stated in the story that the Davis in question is from Cardiff.

Bill Davis from Dysart and Bill Davis from Cardiff are also not to be confused with Bill Davis, the former Ontario Premier.

'Don't let it aggravate you, old buddy'

United States will never fully appreciate the early years and the daily aggravation you had with the Montreal office. Come to think of it, the French language never was your strong suit.

I would love to hear the speeches at your retirement dinner. That foggy general manager will drone on about your great contribution to the Company, point with pride, - view with satisfaction, and then have difficulty remembering your name when he presents your gift. The G.M. will send you off with your good wife, hand in hand into the sunset clutching your new gold watch. Don't let it aggravate you, old buddy. Just give them your special secretive smile; the one that suggests that you are off to the island of Antigua, with the Company's monthly bank deposit and the boss's private secretary.

Alan, I am greatly impressed with your plan to set a fall rather than springtime date for retirement, and then an immediate flight directly to Italy. Shopping on the Via Veneto in Rome: visiting Michelangelo's marble quarries in the mountains near Carrara, and exploring that jewel of a city, Florence. It really sounds wonderful. Your travel agent was smart in scheduling your move further south as the weather gets colder, to Marbella on the Costa del Sol in Spain. Brunch at a beach-front cafe on the Med...and sipping sherry with the locals on the mountain village of Ojen sounds fantastic.

Will you really get well over $300,000 for your old house in Toronto? Sell; by all means, live it up and celebrate; you don't retire every day. Besides, the trip will permit your wife, (who has spent the last 30 years raising kids) to get to know her husband on a full-time basis. It may even moderate the trauma for both of you of full-time work to full-time leisure, and city living to country life, especially when you move up here to Haliburton County.

By the way, Alan, scrap that idea of buying a condo in Peterborough. Consider the negatives: an abrupt change from living in a large house to a two-bedroom apartment; a hundred mile drive to your cottage and a hundred miles to Toronto. It doesn't make sense to me. Besides, Peterborough has an identity crisis due to rapid growth. The City Fathers don't know whether they are managing a small town or a big city.

I much prefer your ideal arrangement for retirement living ... two cars, and a new home close to Minden, while maintaining your attractive cottage on the lake. Of course you need a small apartment in Toronto to aid in the transition from city to country life, which may take as long as two years. Naturally, you will find out as the rest of us have, that you can't afford the 'ideal arrangement'. Therefore, some trade-offs must be made, and rest assured your wife will have the final word on this matter. Convert your cottage to a year-round residence! Forget it, Alan. I cannot imagine that your wife will hang her prized Venetian mirror and that beautiful chandelier over the counter-top in the cottage kitchen and call it home sweet home.

No one said planning for retirement was easy buddy, so keep me posted. With a bit of luck you can join the rest of us who listen to the Toronto traffic reports on the radio while watching the loons play and feed on your beautiful lake.

With best regards, from your friend.

On-site meeting proposed for septic disposal site

In an effort to calm the uproar over a newly-established septic disposal site, Lutterworth Township Council hopes to arrange an on-site meeting with interested parties at the Denna Lake Road property.

Health Unit approval has been granted to use Gladys Kellett Wruth's property to dispose of the waste that has been extracted from area septic tanks. However, neighbouring residents have expressed concern to council that this will ultimately pollute area waterways and create an unbearable smell.

According to Councillor Maurice Boyd, the Health Unit has approved the site and there is little that council can do about it. He said he was out to the site "on the hottest day of the summer" and there was no smell at all.

Reeve Carol Puffer said her biggest concern is that the septic waste might find its way into one of the township's major lakes.

Council will be sending a letter to Public Health Inspector Tom Reddering to see if it is possible to arrange a meeting. Representatives from the Denna Lake Cottagers' Association may also be invited.

Getting ahead in computer racket

The books: The PC Upgrader's Manual. The author: Gilbert Held. The Place: Haliburton Public Library. The reason: to learn how to increase the power of your PC system.

If you are like the rest of us, you've got this computer system that's working pretty well but is starting to, well, fall behind because you don't keep up with the bits and bytes.

But before you can even think of upgrading, you have to know a lot more about buses and operation systems and "shells" and "crippled programs" and heaven's know what else.

Held examines each hardware member of the IBM PC series from the first PC through XT to AT to XT286 and explains how each can be upgraded to meet new needs and additional demands. It explains how each component works and provides you with strategies to respond to changes.

For those starting out, it also provides information on how to acquire a complete system or build a clone for your own practical purposes.

Best part: it helps you with troubleshooting. And in this day of black boxes, accelerator cards, power protectors and yes, even "shells", we need all the help that we can get.

Computer information is just one more area that the Haliburton County Public Library can bring into your life. Try us.

The Canadian Children's Foundation's Helpline for children and youth began operation in June of 1989. A toll free line provides professional guidance to troubled children across the country in a friendly, anonymous manner by way of a free telephone call. The service is available 24 hours a day 7 days a week.

The Helpline is aimed at: being available to children who want or need someone to talk to; letting children know that someone cares; helping to alleviate stress by talking about it; answering questions children can't ask elsewhere; providing an opportunity for earlier detection of a problem; helping and counselling children who are in a difficult situation and referring children to more help.

Children who need help may call free of charge using the toll free number 1-800-668-6868.

ON JANUARY 1, 1991, CANADA'S FEDERAL SALES TAX SYSTEM WILL CHANGE.

PLEASE SAVE THIS NOTICE.

IT EXPLAINS THE CHANGES AND
THE REASONS FOR THEM.

IT IS A MAJOR PART OF THE ONGOING PROGRAM TO REDUCE THE DEFICIT.

A new Goods and Services Tax (GST) will replace the existing Federal Sales Tax. It will be charged at a uniform rate of 9 per cent on the vast majority of goods and services consumed in Canada. The existing federal sales tax rate is generally 13½% at the manufacturer's level.

The present federal sales tax system has been pushed beyond its limits and can no longer sustain the demands placed upon it. The structural weaknesses of the system have given some corporations the opportunity to reduce the amount of tax they would otherwise pay. For a tax system with 75,000 taxpaying corporations, there are 22,000 special arrangements and administrative interpretations required to keep the system in operation.

The present federal sales tax system is an increasingly unpredictable and unreliable source of revenue for the federal government. It must be replaced.

Our enormous debt has put pressure on the government's ability to meet other priorities. Canadians know the risks of not acting to bring the debt under control. The size of the debt has left us exposed to increases in interest rates, and vulnerable to international economic shocks. The reliability and stability of our sources of revenue are all the more important in such an environment. The new federal sales tax will secure year by year reductions in the deficit, while ensuring we can continue to provide Canadians with a standard of services that is among the best in the world.

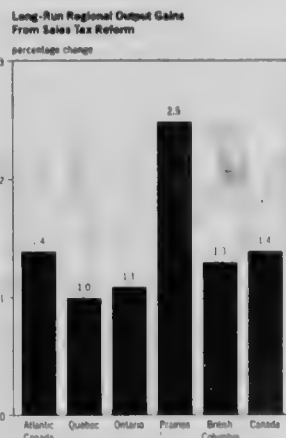

IT WILL STRENGTHEN OUR INTERNATIONAL COMPETITIVENESS AND CREATE JOBS IN CANADA.

Our current federal sales tax favours imports over Canadian made goods. We are the only country in the industrialized world that is putting itself at such a disadvantage. The existing system also makes Canada's exporters less competitive in the world economy. Our present federal sales tax makes our annual economic output about $9 billion lower than it would be with the new GST in place.

Under the GST, we will be able to completely remove tax from our exports and make Canadian products more competitive abroad. And in Canada, Canadian-made products will be able to compete more effectively with imports.

The benefits to the Canadian economy from sales tax reform will extend across all regions and sectors of the economy. The Atlantic and Prairie regions for example, will benefit significantly because their economies are resource-based and export-oriented—two sectors that will benefit the most from sales tax reform.

The GST will lower the cost of the machines, supplies and equipment companies have to buy to produce their products. This will lead to higher levels of investment and expand our output. Higher output will lead to more jobs.

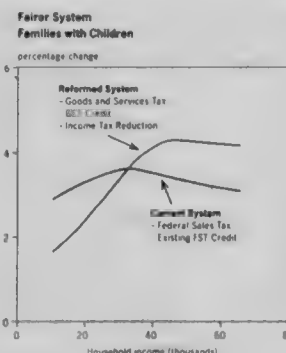

IT WILL HELP LOW INCOME CANADIANS.

Once the GST is in place, families earning less than $30,000 a year will be better off. This will be achieved through a combination of income tax changes. First, low income Canadians will receive the new GST Credit. Second, the middle personal income tax rate will be reduced from 26 per cent to 25 per cent.

The GST Credit will be paid every three months in advance of expenses. Eligible Canadian households will receive their first credit cheque in December 1990, before the January 1, 1991 GST start-up date. About 9 million Canadians will receive Credit cheques. The GST Credit will be calculated on the basis of income tax returns. Every income tax return will contain a one-page form showing Canadians how to apply for the GST Credit.

The amount of the Credit will depend on family size and income. The basic adult credit will be $275. Most single adults will be able to get an additional credit of up to $140, for a total of $415. The child credit will be $100. Single parents will receive an adult Credit of $275 for one of their children. Canadian households with incomes up to about $25,000 annually will be entitled to the full Credit.

A family of two adults and two children, eligible for the full Credit, will for example receive cheques of $187.50, four times over the course of the year, for a total of $750.

IT WILL ELIMINATE HIDDEN TAXES.

Right now, everywhere in this country every time Canadians buy a good or service made in Canada, they are paying federal sales tax. For example, a substantial amount of sales tax is presently buried in house prices. Under the existing system, it is clearly impossible for Canadians to know how much federal sales tax they are paying. There are four different rates on a variety of different products and the tax is buried throughout the production process.

It will be clear to Canadians when they are paying the 9 per cent GST. The broad base of the GST means it will apply to almost everything. The few exceptions will be widely known.

Some retailers in Canada will have cash registers that are capable of showing the GST separately at the check-out counter, while other retailers will not. The federal government will provide an incentive to retailers to assist them in acquiring the cash registers to show the GST separately.

In all cases, the federal government will provide retailers with signs for their stores that clearly indicate that the 9 per cent GST is being applied.

PROPOSED CHANGES.

1. For consumers, the GST will be similar to a retail sales tax, at the rate of 9 per cent on the retail price of goods and services. The GST will replace the existing federal sales tax, which is hidden at the manufacturer's level.
2. The GST will apply to virtually all goods and services sold in Canada; however, Canadians will not be charged tax when they buy the following GOODS: basic groceries; prescription drugs; medical appliances such as eye-glasses and wheel chairs; residential rents and existing houses.
3. Canadians will not be charged tax when they buy the following SERVICES: loans, mortgages, securities and insurance policies; health and dental care; most education services; daycare services; legal aid; and municipal transit and passenger ferry services.
4. Newly constructed houses will be taxed, however, most new home buyers will not see a significant increase in the price of a new house resulting from the GST, because there will be a $900 million GST housing rebate. In many parts of the country price increases will be less than half a per cent. Indeed, many communities should see lower prices as a result of the GST rebate. The main exception will be Toronto, where extraordinarily high land prices may cause prices of new housing to increase by about 1½%.
5. Because the present federal sales tax will be removed, prices will not automatically rise by 9 per cent when the GST is introduced. The prices of some things will be lower, and others higher. The prices of many big-ticket items for example, that are taxed at 13.5 per cent under the present system, will be lower once the 9 per cent GST is in place. The price of other items that are not taxed under the present system will increase.

Finally, well before the GST is up and running, the government will be telling Canadians about the GST and informing them about the kinds of price changes they can expect for key goods and services when the GST replaces the existing federal sales tax.

For instance, here are a few examples of what consumers might expect:

ITEM	PRE-TAX REFORM($)	POST-TAX REFORM($)
Air Conditioner	780.00	770.00
Car	15,000.00	14,700.00
Snow Tires	200.00	203.00
Hotel Accommodation	90.00	95.00

In a society that seems to be fascinated by youth, it is worth noting that those born prior to 1945 "survived" a great deal. Their tongue-in-cheek look at the "survivors" was submitted by John & Geri Fialka of Oshawa.

FOR ALL THOSE BORN PRIOR TO 1945

We are Survivors! Consider the changes we have witnessed:

We were before television, before penicillin, before polio shots, frozen foods, Xerox, contact lenses, Frisbees and the PILL.

We were before radar, credit cards, split atoms, laser beams and ballpoint pens, before pantyhose, dishwashers, clothes dryers, electric blankets, air conditioners, drip-dry clothing - AND - before Man walked on the Moon!

We got married first and THEN lived together. How quaint can you be?

In our times, closets were for clothes, not for "coming out of". Bunnies were small rabbits - and rabbits were no Volks-wagons. Designer Jeans were scheming girls named Jean or Jeanne, and having a meaningful relationship meant getting along well with our cousins.

We thought fast food was what you ate during Lent, and Outer Space was the back of the local theater!

We were before house-husbands, gay rights, computer dating, dual careers and commuter marriages. We were before day-care centres, group therapy and nursing homes. We never heard of FM radio, tape decks, electric typewriters, artificial hearts, word processors, yogurt, and guys wearing earrings. For us, time-sharing meant togetherness - not computers or condominiums; a "chip" meant a piece of wood; hardware meant hardware and software wasn't even a word!

In 1940, "Made in Japan" meant Junk and the term "making out" referred to how you did on an exam. "MacDonalds" and instant coffee were unheard of.

We hit the scene when there were "5 and 10" stores where you bought things for five and ten cents. The corner drug store sold ice cream cones for a nickel or a dime. For one nickel you would ride a street car - make a phone call, buy a Pepsi or enough stamps to mail one letter and two postcards. You could buy a new Chevy Coupe for $600, but who could afford one; a pity, too, because gas was only 11 cents a gallon!

In our day, cigarette smoking was fashionable, GRASS was mowed, COKE was a cold drink and POT was something you cooked in. Rock Music was Grandma's lullaby and AIDS were helpers in the Principal's office.

We were certainly not before the difference between the sexes was discovered, but we were surely before the SEX CHANGE. We made do with what we had. And we were the last generation that was so dumb as to think you needed a husband to have a baby!

No wonder we are so confused and there is such a generation gap!

BUT WE SURVIVED!! What Better Reason to Celebrate?

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally.

They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Q: Why can't it rain two days continually?

A: Because there's a night in between.

Q: What pets make stirring music?

A: Trumpets.

Q: Why is a wild young horse like an egg?

A: They both must be broken before they're used.

Q: Which candles burn longer, wax candles or fallow candles?

A: Neither, they both burn shorter.

Q: What did the big fire-cracker say to the little fire-cracker?

A: My Pop's bigger than your Pop.

SLACAR members demonstrate civic pride

Editor:

Webster's dictionary defines Civic pride as a "citizens high opinion of one's worth: self respect."

If you wanted to see this definition in real live action on August 26, you need only have driven three miles out County Road #16 to our beautiful South Lake in Snowdon Township.

On the corner of Hospitality Road, is a handsome new sign erected by South Lake Association of Cottagers and Residents. Not just an announcement sign, but a directory to aid visitors to our lake. Designed by SLACAR Vice President Gerry Roy and mounted place by Keven DeGrace and his projects committee.

To mark the occasion, "South Lake Day" was launched by Ray and Eleanor Lymer and their PIG campaign - Pitch In Gang.

Forty enthusiastic volunteers, half of them adults, received collection bags, instruction, lapel ribbons and marching orders from Ray to clean up the roadside of the two Township roads that border the lake. Little kids, big kids, their parents and neighbours set off for an hour of debris removal and treasure hunt as part of Snowdon Township clean-up campaign launched earlier in the year. Forty bags of refuse were collected by the team in this enormously successful effort, and the bags in turn were collected by Bill Kelly with his car and trailer. Soda cans, bottles, plastic containers and paper (few beer bottles or cans because of the returnable policy) were all a part of the haul. Sharon and John Lymer did a shore patrol duty by canoe with similar results. Specially marked bags and paper plates were found and returned by the youngsters for prizes provided by local merchants. Our "Pristine Roadside" award goes to Ray and Eleanor Lymer and their helpers for their well-planned, super effort at this first gathering of the "Pitch In Gang."

Later, on the same day, our capable SLACAR president Bob Martin welcomed more than 125 guests to the annual South Lake corn roast and picnic. Hosted once again on their attractive lake shore property by Keven and Phyllis DeGrace, we the guests were treated to a great afternoon of abundant food, drinks, games, conversation, laughter and fun. Whether you chose to sit in your deck chair in the shade or compete in the egg-tossing contest, everyone, young and old alike was pleased with the way Gail Rowett organized the games along with the Donaldson brothers in clown costumes.

The only break in the festivities was the more serious business of eating delicious freshly-picked corn shucked by the kids and prepared by Chef Ray Lymer and his helpers. Did Phyllis DeGrace (the pride of Newfoundland) have her daughter Karen's help when setting up all those streamers and balloons in such a festive fashion? Even the "johnnie on the spot" was decorated. Picnic tables, name tags, prizes, coffee, soda, candy and a blazing fire all seemed to appear as by magic, when a platoon of willing neighbours and volunteers did their part to make the afternoon a great success.

It is little wonder that nearly 90 percent of South Lake residents and cottagers belong to their lake association.

SLACAR through its active membership has this year demonstrated again its sensitivity to our shared community of interest in preserving and extending the best of life on the lake.

Yes indeed. Civic pride is alive and well on South Lake.

Ken Brown,
South Lake

with an eye to their environmental and economic consequences.

Another study group will look at ways the Canadian decision-making process can be tailored to accommodate the goals of sustainable development.

Recycling will occupy a third group; social goals and behavior withing the context of sustainable development will consume a fourth group's time; and a fifth study group will examine foreign policy.

Conservation strategies and economic development must co-exist; one is a condition of the other. The National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy will continue to sit until Canada has in place development practices that fully recognize that principle.

Trent-Severn Report

On Monday, August 21, 1989, the effects of cooler, wetter weather became evident as the Haliburton area lakes showed a decline of less than 3 percent for the first week this summer. At 59.2 percent only 2.2 percent had been lost since the preceding Monday. Reduced need for water along the canal route resulted in cut backs to near minimum flows from the Gull, Burnt and other tributaries and many stoplogs were re-inserted.

Kawartha Lakes levels have been holding adequately at the present flow settings and the occasional rains the last week or two. This situation is not expected to change much in the coming week.

Music and song spice up Thursday afternoon tea

Hi folks! The Thursday tea party was provided by the "35 Club" Carnarvon. Music was played by Marion Irwin and Grace Coburn led the singing. Thank you ladies for the lovely and tea and music.

Bingo Thursday evening was called by Tom McAlister. It is so nice to know we can depend on having someone each Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were here Friday to visit Rev. John Burgess, his wife Mary and mother Lucy. When Mr. and Mrs. Thompson lived here they were faithful helpers with the Sunday night chapel service.

Friday afternoon we had happy hour in the auditorium. Eleanor Smith played the violin, Doris the piano and Bill Moore the banjo and the piano sometimes with Doris. Thank you for entertaining us at the happy hour.

We left about eleven o'clock in the bus to enter the parade in Minden for the Haliburton County Fair. We had our lunch on the bus. Linda and Doris were ably assisted by our volunteers Dick and Sylvia Thompson, Bess and Fred Parker and Dale (Linda's Son) who I neglected to mention Saturday. They were so good helping anyone who wished to see the exhibits or visit the various booths etc. There was some beautiful needlework displayed. A very special thank you to our two clowns Dick and Sylvia Thompson who did such a good job by walking (one on each side of the bus) asking for donations. They received $256.00. Thanks to those who donated. Thanks to Mark Schell and staff for the lovely lunch they prepared for us. The news we were all waiting for the names of the winners of the bus fund draw. Emmett Marleau, Peterborough - barbecue; C. Clarridge, Don Mills - $100.00, and W. McAfee, Minden - afghan.

The winners of "Best dressed from pioneer days" were Molly and Don Freeman of Ingoldsby, generously gave the prize of $125.00 to the bus fund. Needless to say we appreciated it and thank them very much.

Two of our Hyland Crest staff are to come (more on page 35)
